UNDERSTANDING ESTATE PLANNING

A guide designed to help you understand the benefits of smart estate and gift planning.
CONTENTS

MAPPING YOUR LEGACY

What Is Estate Planning? 3
Who Needs It? 3
Setting Your Estate Planning Goals 3
Begin Your Action Plan 4
Recognize the Pitfalls 5
Seek the Experts 5
Essential Estate Planning Documents 6

WHY YOU NEED A WILL

What Is a Will? 7
Making It Valid 7
Your Invisible Estate Plan 7
Choose Your Executor 8
Executor Duties 8
Do Not Expose Your Estate to Chance 9
What Is Probate? 9
How to Establish Bequests 10

THE IMPORTANCE OF GIVING

What Is a Trust? 12
What Goes Into a Trust? 13
Trusts: Irrevocable vs. Revocable 13
How a Trust Gives Protection 14
Making a Revocable Gift in a Trust
  During Your Lifetime 14
A Closer Look: Charitable Remainder Trusts 15
Who Is the Best Trustee? 15

EXPLORE OTHER WAYS TO GIVE

Know the Gifts That Give Back 16
5 Ways to Donate:
  A Gift That Pays You Back 16
  A Gift That Pays You Back in the Future 17
  Donate Your Home and Keep the Keys 17
  Give Through a Trust and Receive Income 17
  Lead Trust 18
What Is Estate Planning?
If you have possessions, you have an estate. Their orderly care during your lifetime represents financial management. Their disposition after your lifetime is called estate settlement. Deciding in advance how this will be done is known as estate planning. Estate planning is that simple.

You plan for the sake of the people in your life. Do not become so engrossed in the legal and tax complexities that you lose sight of the welfare and comfort of those you want to help. And while you are planning for the financial needs of others, your first concern should continue to be your own security and standard of living.

Who Needs It?
Perhaps you feel that estate planning is only for the very rich—the Forbes 400, certainly. Without a doubt, estate planning is for those who are wealthy. But is estate planning for everyone? For you?

One school of thought says the more modest your estate, the greater your need to arrange for its careful handling and disposition—to make it stretch further and to help those closest to you.

Look at the full extent of your assets. When the matter of resources comes up, there is an inclination to focus on stocks and bonds and money in the bank. But your possessions may include other assets that have value, such as your home, life insurance, retirement accounts, and real estate or business investments.

On occasion, people think that some arrangement or law will solve their estate planning problems. For example, they mistakenly assume that joint ownership will take care of matters. Or they believe that state law will ensure that their estate will be left in the proper proportions to those whom they desire.

These are shortsighted misconceptions that can be costly. Anyone who has possessions—property of any kind—needs a carefully organized estate plan. Obviously, the greater the value of your assets and the more diverse your wishes, the more important your need for a proactive plan to cut taxes and costs.

Setting Your Estate Planning Goals
Now let us talk about your objectives. We will start with a basic assumption: You want to keep taxes and administration costs as low as possible. Beyond that, what is important to you?

Yourself. You might assume that estate planning has nothing to do with you personally, except to see that your property is taken care of when you’re gone. This outlook represents a common error.

Smart estate planning involves a generous measure of financial management during your lifetime. As you grow older and your assets increase, you may want to lighten your own responsibilities while ensuring that in the event of sickness or disability, your investments will be prudently managed and your financial obligations met. What is more, planning for the future needs of others can employ vehicles that offer you lifetime advantages, such as a living trust or a life income arrangement.

Your family. If you are married, you and your spouse should decide how your assets will be administered for the maximum advantage of the survivor. When you are gone, your spouse will face new and heavy burdens.

If you have children or grandchildren, what are their special needs? Give serious thought to their lack of experience or any mental or physical disability that may affect their competence to manage their own finances and any assets you leave to them. Remember, you will not be around to make the decisions.

Are there other relatives who are dependent on you? Consider their requirements should they survive you.

What about any business enterprise in which you have an interest; what will happen to it? You may want one or more of your children or business associates to own and manage it after your death.

Your philanthropic interests. Do not overlook worthy causes that advance education, maintain excellence in health care, provide care for less fortunate individuals, and support religious and social service organizations in which you are interested. There is no better way to influence the future than through charitable gifts after your lifetime. Your concern and foresight can secure for you a unique kind of immortality.

Naturally you want your charitable goals to harmonize with the needs of your family. Their support and comfort come first. Careful planning can allow you to satisfy both family and charitable goals.

Begin Your Action Plan

The first step in creating your estate plan is to prepare an inventory of personal data. After you complete this course, we will provide you with a practical record guide to help you start this process.

Without the basic facts that you will detail in your record guide, your estate plan cannot be fashioned intelligently.

MODEL ESTATE INVENTORY

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Assets</th>
<th>George</th>
<th>Martha</th>
<th>Joint</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Residence</td>
<td></td>
<td>$500,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bank and money market accounts</td>
<td>$20,000</td>
<td>$25,000</td>
<td>$40,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mutual funds</td>
<td>$15,000</td>
<td>$10,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Listed securities</td>
<td>$100,000</td>
<td>$25,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Note receivable from son</td>
<td>$10,000</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Business interest (51% of outstanding stock)</td>
<td>$250,000</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Life insurance</td>
<td>$250,000</td>
<td>$50,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Furniture and automobiles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>$60,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oil paintings and jewelry</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>$30,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>401(k) plan and IRAs (payable to each other)</td>
<td>$500,000</td>
<td>$125,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total assets</td>
<td>$1,145,000</td>
<td>$235,000</td>
<td>$630,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mortgage on residence</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>$100,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Life insurance loans</td>
<td>$15,000</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other debts</td>
<td>$15,000</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total liabilities</td>
<td>$30,000</td>
<td>$0</td>
<td>$100,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Assets less liabilities</td>
<td>$1,115,000</td>
<td>$235,000</td>
<td>$530,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The model estate inventory on Page 4 illustrates the financial picture of George and Martha using current market values. This straightforward approach makes it easy for you to ensure that you have covered all the essentials of your own estate inventory.

When you review your present plans and title arrangements, you may be astonished by what you learn. All too often, even the best estate plan becomes outdated by changing personal and financial circumstances, and new tax laws.

1. Recognize the Pitfalls

   It is not our purpose to train you to become an estate planner—even for your own estate. To become accomplished in this legal and financial field requires years of experience. But we can alert you to errors that can cause great unhappiness for those you hold dear and deprive them of funds they may need to live comfortably. Moreover, your future well-being may depend on the plans you make now.

   In estate planning, the worst mistake of all is procrastination. People know they should make plans, but for one reason or another they do not get around to it. When the unexpected occurs, others are forced to pick up the pieces of a confusing financial puzzle.

   There is a better way—a personalized estate plan.

---

TIP SEEK THE EXPERTS

As financial and tax matters become increasingly complex, certain professionals offer skills and expertise to assist you in formulating estate plans. Find qualified referrals from reputable sources.

- An estate planning lawyer is needed to interpret the maze of laws on property rights, taxes, wills, probate and trusts.
- A certified public accountant who specializes in tax matters can analyze the tax impact of estate plans.
- A financial advisor or life insurance professional offers advice on ways life insurance can build your estate and provide the liquid funds needed for taxes or a business buyout agreement.
- A trust officer’s experience in administering trusts is valuable in discussions of personal and investment aspects of fiduciary relationships.
- A charitable gift planner represents a charity and can explain the array of gift plans available to meet your needs, save taxes and serve the organization’s goals.
ESSENTIAL ESTATE PLANNING DOCUMENTS

1. YOUR WILL
   This document disposes of your property upon your passing. A phrase such as “all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate” will ensure that any assets controlled by your will and not otherwise mentioned in your will pass to those you want to receive them.

2. A TRUST
   This is an arrangement for the management of your assets. There are many kinds of trusts, but they all share this common definition: “A fiduciary relationship in which the trustee holds title to property (the trust principal) for the benefit of another (the beneficiary) during the trust term.”

3. LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES
   These provide for payment of the face value to your designated beneficiary upon your death. This beneficiary may be an individual, a trustee or a charity. Or you can have the proceeds held by the insurance company for payment of either interest or fixed installments to your beneficiaries.

4. RETIREMENT PLAN ACCOUNTS AND EMPLOYEE BENEFITS
   These include pension or profit-sharing benefits, a 401(k) or Keogh plan, an IRA, group life insurance and stock options. They have written provisions for their disposition upon your disability, retirement or death. Social Security can be another important benefit at such times.

5. DURABLE POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR FINANCES
   This ensures that someone you trust will have legal authority to take care of financial matters if you cannot. (The term “durable” means that the document remains effective if you become incapacitated.) The tasks may range from paying bills to filing taxes.

6. LIVING WILL AND HEALTH CARE POWER OF ATTORNEY
   These forms explain your health care wishes. A living will directs your doctor to withhold or withdraw life-prolonging interventions if you are terminally ill or permanently unconscious. A health care power of attorney allows you to name a person to make decisions for you.
Everyone needs a will. We will discuss if probate is necessary and whether joint ownership can take the place of a will. We will explain why a will has to be so long and why all that legal jargon is necessary.

What Is a Will?
A will is a legal document that transfers some of the assets held in your individual name to your beneficiaries when you pass away. It also names the executor whom you want to carry out the terms of the will and a guardian for any minor children.

Making It Valid
To create a valid will, you must be of sound mind and legal age. Even if you are incompetent, you may at times have lucid moments when a valid will can be executed. A will made under threatening circumstances (“Sign this or else!”), however, can be invalidated.

Mighty court battles have been fought over the validity of a will, so the signing ritual is important. The procedure varies, but it may begin with your attorney asking, “Do you declare this to be your last will and testament?” and “Do you request these people to witness your signature?” Most states require at least two witnesses to the testator’s signature, and both witnesses must be present when the testator responds to the above questions and signs the will. The witnesses, however, do not need to know the contents of the will.

Many states allow the addition of a self-proving affidavit to a will. This document is notarized at the time of signing. Ultimately, the affidavit can be offered to the court for proof that the will was signed properly. If no one objects, the affidavit will avoid the necessity of bringing one or more of the witnesses before the court after the testator’s death to testify as to the signing.

Generally, a will that was validly made in the state of a person’s domicile will need to be redone if that person moves to another state because each state has its own requirements for a valid will. A newly revised will establishes your new legal residence, provides local witnesses, establishes your executor’s qualifications to serve in the new state and includes provisions facilitating settlement under the laws of the new state.

Your Invisible Estate Plan
People often think that a will controls the distribution of their entire estate. They forget that some assets are not included under its terms.

Three common methods exist by which some of your assets are transferred to your heirs after your death:
- Beneficiary designation
- Joint ownership with rights of survivorship
- Will or trust

Beneficiary designations are common with life insurance, pensions, IRAs and 401(k) plans. When you name a beneficiary on these accounts, upon your death the accounts are distributed directly to your beneficiary without going through probate. Your will does not determine who will receive these benefits.

Jointly owned property with rights of survivorship generally goes to the surviving joint owner, regardless of what the will states. The same is true of one-half of community property in nine states.

DID YOU KNOW?
When you pass away without a will in place, the laws of your state determine what happens to your children and your assets. Do not let that happen to you and your loved ones!
If you own property jointly as tenants-in-common with another person, your one-half of the property will follow the provisions in your will; therefore, your beneficiary will become the new co-owner at your death with your original tenant-in-common.

It is important in the estate planning process to know how your assets will pass to your heirs and how they are owned—jointly or not, and if jointly, which type of joint ownership so that all your assets transfer to the proper beneficiary.

If you overlook these arrangements, you may hinder your overall plans. Ultimately, your oversight could result in additional taxes and administrative costs. For example, joint assets will not be added to a trust in a will that is designed to save taxes and provide professional investment management.

Inequity can occur unintentionally. For example, a widow wanted to treat her son and daughter equally, so she gave each child one-half of her estate. But her sizable bank accounts were in joint names with her son so that he could pay her bills (a power of attorney would have sufficed). After she died, he received half of the estate controlled by her will (her “probate” estate) and also all the funds in the bank accounts. Imagine how her daughter felt!

Choose Your Executor
Once they have decided on the division of their assets, most people do not give sufficient thought to the choice of their executor (also known as the personal representative).

This is a crucial decision that you should start thinking about early in the planning stage. From the standpoint of your beneficiaries, on-the-job training of an executor can be a costly and unhappy experience.

Weigh carefully the nature of the many duties that must be assumed. Will your executor be able to carry them out properly? What is your proposed executor’s knowledge of estate settlement, finance and investments, taxes and record keeping? What about the availability and state of health of the individual? Will your choice of executor be impartial when dealing with your beneficiaries?

EXECUTOR DUTIES

- Petitions the court to open probate and to admit the will
- Notifies all beneficiaries included in the will, or intestate heirs, of the administration of the will
- Notifies all creditors that probate is in process
- Collects the deceased’s assets and lists them in an inventory
- Seeks court approval to sell any assets that might be necessary to pay debts
- Determines and pays claims against the estate
- Pays federal and state taxes
- Distributes the estate’s net assets, according to the court’s order, to the will’s beneficiaries, or heirs if there is no will
- Closes the estate
If you plan to name a bank or trust institution to serve as executor, visit that organization and talk with their officers before you make your decision.

If you have minor children, you should name a guardian of each child and each child’s property (a custodian) in case your spouse does not qualify or does not survive you. Otherwise, the court may appoint someone you might not have chosen.

Do Not Expose Your Estate to Chance

You need a current will whether you are single or married, young or old, and whether your estate is modest or large.

Any updates to your will should be made by your attorney to ensure that changes are valid. Your will may seem overly long, but your attorney needs to write in a specific style. This is necessary to express your wishes for the disposition of your property under all circumstances while giving your executor the powers needed to do the job properly.

Instead of dreading the event, consider your will-making appointment with your attorney as an opportunity to plan how you can benefit your family, friends and charities in a creative manner after your lifetime.

GOOD TO KNOW

Be careful to store important papers where they are safe as well as reasonably accessible; do not put your will in a bank’s safe-deposit box, as it may be hard to access immediately after your passing.

WHAT IS PROBATE?

Used in its original meaning, probate refers to the court process for determining the validity of a deceased person’s will. By custom, the entire process of settling an estate has become known as probate. Here is the actual process:

1. Collecting and safeguarding of assets
2. Paying proper claims
3. Filing tax returns
4. Managing investments and other property
5. Distributing estate assets according to the terms of the will

The process of probate is intended to protect and direct the distribution of property according to your will. But not all of your assets go through probate. Most life insurance and retirement plans, assets you own jointly with rights of survivorship, and assets owned by a revocable living trust do not pass according to the terms of your will and avoid the probate process.

Living trusts are a popular option for passing on assets. In general, the greater the value of your assets, the greater the potential value in having a living trust. Most revocable trust-based estate plans, however, have companion wills that require a limited form of probate. For more on living trusts, see Page 12 of this booklet.
HOW TO ESTABLISH BEQUESTS

The gifts in your will can take various forms. They can be cash or personal and real property. They can be shares of the residue of your estate. They can be given outright or in trust. You can designate your gift for a specific purpose. A charitable gift can be unrestricted, restricted or contingent. Here are eight generally accepted ways to make a bequest. Discuss them with your attorney as you prepare to plan or update your will.

1 Specific bequest. This is a gift of a specific item to a specific beneficiary. For example, “I give my golf clubs to my nephew John.” If you no longer own the golf clubs at your death, the bequest fails and John cannot claim any other property. (In other words, John would not receive cash for the value of the golf clubs instead.)

2 General bequest. This is usually a gift of a stated sum of money. It will not fail, even if there is not enough cash in your estate to pay this bequest. For example, “I give $50,000 to my daughter, Mary.” If there is only $2,500 cash in the estate, other assets must be sold to pay the bequest.

3 Contingent bequest. This is a bequest made on condition that a certain event must occur before distribution to the beneficiary. For example, “I give $50,000 to my son, Joe, provided he enrolls in college before age 21.” A contingent bequest is specific in nature and fails if the condition is not met. (A contingent bequest is also appropriate if you want to name a secondary beneficiary, in case the primary beneficiary does not survive you. For example, “I give my stamp collection to my friend Susan, provided she survives me. Otherwise, I give my stamp collection to my friend Patty.”)

4 Residuary bequest. This is a gift of all the “rest, residue and remainder” of your estate after all other debts, taxes and bequests have been paid. For example, let us say you own property worth $500,000 and you intend to give a child $50,000 by specific bequest and leave $450,000 to your spouse through a residuary bequest. If the debts, taxes and expenses are $100,000, there would only be $350,000 left for the surviving spouse.

   Therefore, most attorneys agree that the preferred method to ensure that your beneficiaries receive the proportions you desire is to divide your estate

Do you really need a lawyer to draft a will?

YES. Only attorneys licensed to practice law are qualified to draft wills; do-it-yourself kits can spell disaster.
according to percentages of the residue (rather than specifying dollar amounts).

The following four items are special considerations when you plan a charitable bequest.

5 Unrestricted bequest. This is a gift for the charitable organization’s general purposes to be used at the discretion of its governing board. A gift like this—without conditions attached—is frequently the most useful because it allows the charity to determine the wisest and most pressing need for the funds at the time of receipt.

Here is sample language that your attorney could include in your will when making a gift to the IRC: “I [name] of [city, state ZIP], give, devise and bequeath the sum of $__ or __ percent of my estate to the International Rescue Committee, Inc., a nonprofit institution incorporated in the State of New York with a business address of 122 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10168-1289 and a tax identification number 13-5660870 for its unrestricted use and purpose.”

6 Restricted bequest. This type of gift allows you to specify how the funds are to be used. Perhaps you have a special purpose or project in mind. If so, it is best to consult with the charitable organization, such as the IRC, when you make your will to be certain your intent can be carried out according to your wishes.

7 Honorary or memorial bequest. This is a gift given “in honor of” or “in memory of” someone. Charitable organizations normally have many ways to grant appropriate recognition.

8 Endowed bequest. This bequest allows you to restrict the principal of your gift, requiring the charity to hold the funds permanently and use only the annual investment income or a small percentage of the total fund each year. Creating an endowment in this manner means that your gift can continue giving indefinitely, and you can leave a lasting legacy.

With this option, IRC is able to use your gift for the most pressing humanitarian crises.
THE IMPORTANCE OF TRUSTS

Trusts can offer new ways to protect your family and your money. We will explain how the right trust can help you save estate administration expenses and broaden your estate plan.

What Is a Trust?
Simply stated, a trust is an agreement by which a person appoints someone to carry out specific or generalized services of financial management.

Those establishing a trust and providing the initial assets are called grantors. The trustee, appointed by the grantor, is responsible for providing the managerial services required by the trust agreement. Beneficiaries are those who receive income and/or principal from the trust and the remaindermen are those who will receive assets at the end of the trust. You can set up a trust for anyone for almost any purpose. Here are some typical trust arrangements:

Bypass trust. You can create a trust in your will—known as a testamentary trust—for the benefit of your spouse, children or others you select. With this type of trust, you direct the trustee to pay the income to or for the benefit of the people you name. In addition, you can authorize the trustee to advance principal for the needs of your beneficiaries (an arrangement sometimes called “invading” the principal).

In a typical bypass or family trust, one spouse sets up a trust in his or her will for the other spouse’s benefit and directs that after the other spouse’s death, the trust shall continue for the support of their children until the children attain a certain age, say 25 or 30. Then the trustee is to turn over the principal to the children.

Living trust. You might decide to create a trust for your own benefit—a trust that will remain operative while you are living. It is logically called a living or inter vivos (Latin for “between living persons”) trust. In this case, you direct the trustee (you can name yourself trustee) to look after the trust assets, pay you the income and counsel you about the investments. You can be kept fully informed about all transactions and can reserve the right to amend or revoke the trust, add or withdraw assets, and, in some cases, approve investment changes. The trust can continue after your lifetime for the benefit of your family or others, and the trust assets avoid the costs and delays of probate.

Charitable remainder trust. You can set up a trust to pay income to yourself or someone else you choose for life with the remainder going to a favorite charitable organization, such as the IRC. The organization will not receive any benefits until after your lifetime (or after the lifetime of your spouse or other income beneficiary named by you.)

These charitable trusts can be measured by a lifetime, by a set term of years (not to exceed 20) or certain combinations of the two. The trustee can be any person or bank or trust company, with successor trustees or co-trustees named, if appropriate.

A type of “life income” gift, this plan offers you many benefits: income tax savings when you itemize; potentially more income; a way to diversify investments while, for most donors, paying no up-front tax on their appreciation; and income for a survivor if desired. It is also possible you and your family may receive more than you originally gave. Such results depend on many factors, including the size of your estate, the potential income tax savings (for a trust funded during your lifetime), the investment yield on those savings and the payments received from the trust.

The size of a trust depends on its purpose. A trust can hold virtually all your assets or only that portion you want held for a certain beneficiary. There is no minimum size for a trust except what is practical. Corporate trustees—banks and trust institutions—usually have a minimum fee; therefore, administration of very small trusts by a corporate trustee is normally uneconomical.

Who does not need a trust?

It depends on the type of assets you own, the size of your estate and your plans for it. If you have few assets now— you are young and single, or newly married and just starting out—you can skip a trust for a while.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TRUSTS</th>
<th>IRREVOCABLE</th>
<th>VS.</th>
<th>TRUSTS</th>
<th>REVOCABLE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>You cannot make changes.</td>
<td>You can modify them until you pass.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>You lose control over the assets.</td>
<td>You control assets and pay the taxes.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Once assets are transferred in, you cannot remove them.</td>
<td>You can transfer assets in and out easily with no annual limits.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trust assets are generally protected from creditors.</td>
<td>Trust assets are not protected from creditors.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
How a Trust Gives Protection
If you create a trust, you may be motivated by a desire to protect the trust beneficiary, preserve the trust assets or both.

If you make yourself the initial income beneficiary of a living trust, more than likely you do so because you want to provide for future needs. For example, if you are busy, travel a lot or become incapacitated, you would like the trustee to act in your best interest on investment matters and perhaps even to pay your bills. After your lifetime, you may want to have the trust income or principal flow directly to family and avoid the costs, delays and publicity of probate.

If you prefer, you can arrange to have your trust become operative only after your lifetime and for any number of purposes. For example, a husband may want to be certain that his wife will have her financial needs met when he is gone. A parent may want to set aside funds in trust for children to see to their support and education until they are mature enough to manage for themselves. The grantor of a trust may want to be sure that the beneficiary does not waste the assets and is not subject to the self-seeking influence of others.

Making a Revocable Gift in a Trust During Your Lifetime
If you are interested in making a charitable gift but want to keep control of your assets as long as you live, there are other methods besides the terms of your will. As in the case of a benevolent will, however, our tax laws do not allow you to deduct these revocable gifts for income tax purposes because you hold the ability to revise your plans. Still, these methods are worth considering when you want to show your commitment to an important cause.

You can create a revocable trust in which you place cash, securities and other assets. You will receive the income for life; if that is insufficient for your needs and wants, you can withdraw assets anytime. You specify, however, that a percentage of what is left in the trust after your lifetime will go to the charities you designate—with the balance going to your loved ones. In the meantime, you can do anything you want with the trust: add to it, amend it or even revoke it.

If you feel there is more to be said about trusts, you are right. We have only covered the basics. The elasticity of the trust concept offers innumerable possibilities. You may find it to be one of the most useful strategies in your personal estate plan.

GOOD TO KNOW
Keep in mind a trust might not exist forever. It can last up to a date you specify in the trust document or until a particular event occurs—the date a child reaches a particular age, for instance, or when the amount in the trust is too small to administer. Many states limit a noncharitable trust to a specified term of years.
THE IMPORTANCE OF TRUSTS

A CLOSER LOOK
Charitable Remainder Trusts

If you would like to benefit your family in a tax-wise manner after your lifetime and also support the International Rescue Committee, consider naming a charitable remainder trust as the beneficiary of your retirement account.

More individuals participate in tax-favored retirement plans than ever before. While many of us are committed to accumulating and growing these assets, few have planned for the tax consequences associated with retirement plan distributions—a tax of up to 37 percent at the top rate for an individual beneficiary.

You can use retirement plan assets to make charitable gifts when you name a charitable remainder trust as the beneficiary—there are no income taxes on the transferred funds because the trust is a tax-exempt entity. The trustee can invest the full amount in income-producing assets.

The best-planned trust will fail to achieve your goals if the trustee does not carry out the trust terms and duties properly. The task often involves long-term management because a trust may span several generations. It is wise to choose a trustee carefully. Here are some important attributes to seek:

• Knowledgeable about investments and taxes
• Sympathetic concern
• Record-keeping ability
• Reliable

As you can see, the qualifications of a good trustee are formidable. Some, but not many, individuals meet the test. Even fewer would take the job if they knew what was expected of them. For these reasons, a corporate trustee—a bank or trust institution with officers specially trained in trust management—is often a good choice.
You can support the International Rescue Committee and receive financial benefits with long-term security in return. Additionally, here we will explain the benefits behind charitable gift annuities and deferred annuities, and look deeper into trusts that serve special purposes, such as charitable remainder trusts and lead trusts. Finally, we will tell you about a gift that can provide a tax deduction for your home and allow you to continue to live there your entire life.

Know the Gifts That Give Back
Many people underestimate the extent of their wealth. Without an inventory of your assets and personal property, you may not realize how much you have to give away. Your children may no longer need as much financial help as you are capable of giving. Perhaps there are charitable causes, like the IRC, that you would like to support in order to leave a legacy and perpetuate your values.

You can actually increase your income and reduce your taxes by making a life income gift. The recipient, such as the IRC, cannot use your contribution now, but after your lifetime we will receive a sum that will support our humanitarian work. One kind of life income gift is a charitable remainder trust (discussed in more detail starting on Page 12). With this gift, the IRC’s use of the money or property is deferred and will consist only of what remains after your lifetime.

In addition to an increased income and reduced income taxes, you receive other valuable benefits from a life income gift, including the following:

- Income for a surviving spouse or other beneficiary
- A way to diversify appreciated assets
- Elimination of up-front capital gains taxes
- Reduced investment worries
- The satisfaction of making a significant future gift to one or more of your favorite charities

5 WAYS TO DONATE

1. A Gift That Pays You Back
The charitable gift annuity pays you a fixed amount for life. You make a gift of money or securities to the charity of your choice, which then agrees to pay you a set amount for life. (The charitable gift annuity option is not available in a few states or from some organizations, but the IRC does accept them.)

   The payout rate you receive is determined by your age and the age of any other person you name to receive the payments at the time of the gift. The rate remains constant once you make your gift. The older you are, the higher the rate you can secure.

   For two lives, the rate paid is slightly lower because the period of payment likely will be longer.

   Assuming you itemize deductions, you may take a charitable deduction for part of the value of your gift when you file that year’s federal income tax return. A portion of each gift annuity payment may also be income tax–free throughout your life expectancy.

   There is a taxable gain when a gift annuity is funded with appreciated property. You can avoid or reduce this tax by giving cash or high cost basis property. With appreciated property, the capital gain is not taxed in a lump sum, but taxed ratably over your life expectancy as lower capital gains income.

DID YOU KNOW?
Your charitable deduction is available only for the net value of property you transfer to a charity. If you retain some interest in the property or give it to another noncharity, such as one of your relatives, the amount of the deduction will be reduced by the value retained.
2 A Gift That Pays You Back in the Future
You can have your payment deferred until a later date, such as the date of your retirement. You make the contribution now, qualifying for an income tax charitable deduction. The charity agrees to pay you a set income for life, starting at any date you choose.

This arrangement is especially advantageous if your tax bracket is higher now than you assume it will be later. In addition, the future annual payout rate and your income tax deduction are considerably higher than with an immediate payment gift annuity.

3 Donate Your Home and Keep the Keys
You can live in your home but give it to a charity and receive a charitable deduction.

It works like this. Assume you want to continue using your personal residence for life. You may also want a survivor (perhaps your spouse) to enjoy life occupancy. But ultimately you would like a charitable organization, such as the IRC, to receive the property.

By deeding your home to the IRC now, subject to your right to live in it, you can qualify for an income tax deduction. The amount depends on the value of the property and your age (and the age of any other person given life use).

4 Give Through a Trust and Receive Income
When you create a charitable remainder trust, you can choose from two types: an annuity trust or a unitrust.

Example: John gives securities to fund a charitable remainder trust. His trust pays him an income for as long as he lives. John chooses whether these payments are a fixed amount of money (annuity trust) or a variable amount based on a fixed percentage of the annually determined value of the assets (unitrust). On his passing, the remaining balance in the trust is payable to the IRC.

You can fund the trust with cash or almost any other asset you wish, subject to the trustee’s willingness to accept it. Moreover, you can increase your income by funding the trust with appreciated property that yields a low return. You do this by arranging for a payout that assures you a higher level of return.

BE INFORMED
Learn about your favorite charity—its history, programs, use of funds and tax-exempt status, if any; and the percentage of fundraising that goes toward programs. Visit the BBB Wise Giving Alliance’s website at www.bbb.org/charity for helpful tips.
If you sold the property, you would generally pay a significant percentage of federal tax on the capital gain. But the gift to a charitable remainder trust escapes this up-front tax.

How These Trusts Work for You

You decide how much to put into the trust. Next, you consider how much income you would like to receive from the assets. Finally, you decide whether you want a fixed or variable amount each year.

Which is better? If you want to receive a predictable dollar amount regardless of fluctuation in the trust investments, then choose an annuity trust. If you think the value of the trust assets is likely to increase over the years, a unitrust is for you.

Naturally you would like the dollar or percentage figure for your trust to be as high as possible. This value is negotiable within limits as set by the IRS. But keep in mind that under IRS rules, your income tax charitable deduction is higher if you opt for a lower payout.

Trust Advantages

An annuity trust and a unitrust both allow you an income tax charitable deduction.

Assuming you itemize your deductions, in the year you establish your trust, you can take a federal income tax deduction and carry over any excess and unused amount for up to five additional years. The deduction represents the present worth of the philanthropic organization’s remainder interest as determined by U.S. Treasury tables. The deduction is less when two people (perhaps husband and wife) are beneficiaries of the same trust, since payments are likely to continue longer.

5 Lead Trust

You can give income to a charity for several years and provide that the trust’s balance will then go to your children and/or grandchildren. They will receive the trust assets free of federal gift and estate taxes or at least with those taxes greatly reduced.

This plan uses a charitable "lead" trust, so called because the charitable organization, such as the IRC, benefits first. This technique is most useful for an individual with a large estate who is exposed to high gift and estate tax brackets.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE?

Charitable lead trust vs. charitable remainder trust

The latter pays sums to private individuals each year for a term of years or for life, with the balance of the trust property going to charity. A charitable lead trust pays income to a charitable organization like the IRC for a period of years, after which the trust property is distributed to the selected private individuals.

DID YOU KNOW?

The retained life estate charitable deduction is also available for a farm, vacation home, condominium or stock in a cooperative housing corporation if it is used by you as a personal residence.

California residents: Annuities are subject to regulation by the State of California. Payments under such agreements, however, are not protected or otherwise guaranteed by any government agency or the California Life and Health Insurance Guarantee Association. Oklahoma residents: A charitable gift annuity is not regulated by the Oklahoma Insurance Department and is not protected by a guaranty association affiliated with the Oklahoma Insurance Department. South Dakota residents: Charitable gift annuities are not regulated by and are not under the jurisdiction of the South Dakota Division of Insurance.
SUGGESTED WORDING TO INCLUDE A GIFT IN YOUR WILL

“I [name], of [city, state ZIP], give, devise and bequeath the sum of $________ or _____ percent of my estate to the International Rescue Committee, Inc., a nonprofit institution incorporated in the State of New York with a business address of 122 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10168-1289 and a tax identification number 13-5660870 for its unrestricted use and purpose.”

WANT TO LEARN MORE?

Office of Planned Giving
+1 212 551 2954
PlannedGiving@Rescue.org
122 East 42nd Street
New York, NY 10168-1289
Rescue.org/PlannedGiving

Call the IRC’s toll-free phone number:
+1 855 9RESCUE